

An animal's immune system has so many built-in failsafes that, in theory at least, they should rarely fall ill. But, in fact, they do. Harmful agents can baffle their defences. Their systems can simply be overwhelmed by the number and toxicity of viruses, bacteria, or other foreign cells and toxins. Some immune systems just need help.

WHAT SETS IMMUNOCARE™ APART?

Many supplements are rendered ineffective by stomach acids before they even start to work. ImmunoCare capsules are specially coated to protect them from stomach acids and stay intact until they reach the gut. They also contain Cellasate, a unique component that has been designed to facilitate retention and absorption at the cellular level.

ImmunoCare is a daily immune support system for animals. It is a complex blend of plant sterols, together with potent antioxidant support and an essential fatty acid complex which have been shown to be important in helping to keep the immune system in balance, and in keeping the inflammatory response under control.

SEASONAL ALLERGIES Even our pets get seasonal allergies - itchy eyes, snuffles, lethargy, in fact a host of symptoms that are difficult to diagnose. However, boosting the immune system can have a radical impact on these allergic reactions. Allergies are not just a seasonal irritant, many illnesses, including autoimmune disorders and inflammatory diseases are associated with, or arise from, years of untreated symptoms.

PERSISTENT ACHES & FATIGUE: Any signs of persistent aches and fatigue should be checked with your vet as they may be an indicator of some other problem. However, supporting the immune system with ImmunoCare can often help to alleviate aches and fatigue and help to get joints and muscles moving too.
